

PIGS AND PINE.

Aut inveniam viam, aut faciam.

VOL. IV. NO. 23.

LOUISA, LAWRENCE CO., KY., FEBRUARY 7, 1889.

M. F. CONLEY Publisher.

CURRENT TOPICS.

A FLORIDA railroad has a lady conductor. LORD SALISBURY, Premier of England, wears a No. 8 hat. The late Emperor William's decorations filled a large chest. The rubber tip at the end of lead pencils has yielded $20,000.

The State of New York has spent $18,000,000 on its capital. Country-boys in Kansas are becoming monotonous.

The leading physician of Cincinnati, Kas., is Dr. Pancoke. DR. GATLING has invented a cheap and effective torpedo-boat.

The veterans of the war are dying off at the rate of 6,000 a year. A New York man recently paid $25 for an almanac 273 years old.

A CHICAGO dress-maker calls herself "a gowning and frocking artist." PEAR grafts on a quince stock produce the most abundant and luscious fruit.

LAST year 100 persons were killed and 600 injured on the railroads of Virginia. UPWARD of $2,000 a year was made by the inventor of the common needle threader.

DR. PAUL GIBBER proposes to experiment on monkeys with yellow fever germs. It is said that the room in which Maxwell murdered Preller at St. Louis is haunted.

RAILROAD bills introduced into the Nebraska Senate are either pigeon-holed or sandbagged. The women of New Orleans will build and maintain during the coming carnival a cotton palace.

A Boston man has applied for a divorce from his wife because she wouldn't sew buttons on his coat. ONE ton of ore is capable of yielding an amount of force equivalent to that of six and two-thirds men.

THE opening of the new Chamber of Commerce at Cincinnati, a few nights ago, was a brilliant affair. KANSAS has built a school-house every year in the year for the past four years, and did not for good count.

IT is coincidental worthy of remark that General Boulanger was elected on the German Emperor's birthday. "In a few months the King of Spain will celebrate his third birthday in a style befitting his exalted position."

A CLUB of twenty Baltimore dandies is going to "do" Europe this summer without relatives or chaperones. It is proposed to establish a home for German invalids at San Remo, as a memorial to the Emperor Frederick.

IT is said that a couple of ladies in Pittsfield, Mass., earned $5,000 by teaching the art and mystery of whist-playing. EMPEROR WILLIAM has appointed his brother, Prince Henry, to a captaincy in the navy and colonelcy in the army.

THERE is not much future for a young man who has learned how to spend a fortune before he knows how to make one. A MINISTER in Shelby County, Mo., in one day recently preached two sermons, married two couples and set three broken ribs.

IT is said that a citizen of Palmyra, Mo., got up in the night and went into the woods and felled a large tree while asleep. W. O'BRIEN is sentenced to four months' imprisonment at hard labor, but this will not keep the Irish doctor from talking and writing.

SAMOA is composed of the Society Islands. It is not the kind of society, however, that most people would fancy just at this time. WISCONSIN is before the Pennsylvania Legislature providing for the placing of the stars and stripes over each school house in that State.

REV. EDWARD EVERETT HALE wants the Government to pension all school teachers who have faithfully served for fifty consecutive years. The inventor of the roller skate made over $200,000 notwithstanding the fact that his patent had nearly expired before its value was ascertained.

THE Custer monument in Montana has been so greatly defaced by Indians shooting at it that it has been found necessary to recut the names on it. A SCIENTIFIC article explains why tightly coiled women get short of breath. The wonder is not that they get short of it, but that they get it at all.

PROF. W. D. KERR, superintendent of the Missouri Deaf and Dumb Institution, who has just resigned, has filled that position for thirty-seven years. It turns out that Klein, the American newspaper man, with his German name, who has been figuring in the Boston business, is an Englishman by birth.

THE removal of the capital of Arizona from Prescott to Phoenix having been decided on, it is reasonable to infer that the latter place has risen from its ashes. NEW YORK set the example of enacting a law to execute death sentences by means of electricity, and Ohio, Illinois and Missouri are about to take similar action.

THE scheme of profit-sharing seems to have passed the experimental stage. A New York company declares that it has benefited them as well as the employees. EMPRESS FREDERICK of Germany must obtain the permission of her son, the Emperor, before she can accept the $2,000,000 bequeathed her by the Duchess of Galliera.

ST. LOUIS has got hold of a man who has stolen twenty-eight horses in six months, and he is not only eighty-two years of age, but lame, near-sighted and suffering with asthma.

DURING the last eleven years 1,535 female servants in Germany have received a cross and diploma from the Empress Augusta for continuous service in one family for forty years. THE Woman's Exchange, of New York, sold about $50,000 worth of things last year. Of 4,170 pieces of work done upon order only twenty-four were returned as unsatisfactory.

THERE are propositions in France to construct canals from Bordeaux to the seaboard of the Atlantic and from Narbonne to the Mediterranean; total length, 330 miles; cost, $130,000,000. A CHURCH in Almont, Mich., raises money in a novel way. A box is placed in the church, and the members on their birthdays drop as many cents into the box as they are years old.

THERE are 7,000,000 negroes in the United States. In the South there are 16,000 colored school teachers. They have colleges, universities and seminaries, and are worth $2,000,000 in property.

CLAYTON'S DEATH.

A Cold-Blooded and Brutal Assassination.

Comes Like a Thunder-Clap to Political Friends and Opponents—Arkansas Deeply Sorrowed by the Awful Tragedy.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 31.—The assassination of Colonel John M. Clayton at Plummerville has been a source of great excitement here all day, crowds of people being congregated at the hotels, in the Legislature lobbies and on the streets discussing the subject. The event is condemned in all quarters. The town in which he was killed the same in which the ballot-box was stolen containing a majority for him at the November election, when he was the Republican candidate against Clinton B. Breckinridge, present incumbent from the Second Congressional District, and the same county in which Clayton, a drummer from Benton, Ark., and his secretary, Mr. Almut, were shot recently, was assaulted with an air-gun on the day of election. The dispatches indicate that the deed was a cold-blooded, cowardly assassination.

Clayton was in his room at Mrs. Craven's boarding-house at nine o'clock at night, together with R. W. Womack, a drummer from Benton, Ark., and his secretary, Mr. Almut. For some time past he had been nervous, as he feared he would have trouble in Conway County. He had been talking with his associates, and had sat down near the window. Just at that instant there was a tremendous explosion, and the gentlemen present thought that the lamp had burst. Mr. Womack stated that the lamp had exploded, and Almut, who was nearest Clayton, said "No, Clayton has been shot." As soon as a light could be secured they found him lying on the floor, his head and neck blown to pieces. The deed was committed with a double-barreled shotgun, and a revolver was found underneath the window. The town has possibly four or five hundred people, and are crying out for red tape and plenty of hemp. The new building stands at the corner of Fourth and Vine streets. It is a co-incidence worthy of remark that General Boulanger was elected on the German Emperor's birthday.

In a few months the King of Spain will celebrate his third birthday in a style befitting his exalted position."

A CLUB of twenty Baltimore dandies is going to "do" Europe this summer without relatives or chaperones.

It is proposed to establish a home for German invalids at San Remo, as a memorial to the Emperor Frederick.

It is said that a couple of ladies in Pittsfield, Mass., earned $5,000 by teaching the art and mystery of whist-playing.

EMPEROR WILLIAM has appointed his brother, Prince Henry, to a captaincy in the navy and colonelcy in the army.

THERE is not much future for a young man who has learned how to spend a fortune before he knows how to make one.

A MINISTER in Shelby County, Mo., in one day recently preached two sermons, married two couples and set three broken ribs.

IT is said that a citizen of Palmyra, Mo., got up in the night and went into the woods and felled a large tree while asleep.

W. O'BRIEN is sentenced to four months' imprisonment at hard labor, but this will not keep the Irish doctor from talking and writing.

SAMOA is composed of the Society Islands. It is not the kind of society, however, that most people would fancy just at this time.

WISCONSIN is before the Pennsylvania Legislature providing for the placing of the stars and stripes over each school house in that State.

REV. EDWARD EVERETT HALE wants the Government to pension all school teachers who have faithfully served for fifty consecutive years.

The inventor of the roller skate made over $200,000 notwithstanding the fact that his patent had nearly expired before its value was ascertained.

THE Custer monument in Montana has been so greatly defaced by Indians shooting at it that it has been found necessary to recut the names on it.

A SCIENTIFIC article explains why tightly coiled women get short of breath. The wonder is not that they get short of it, but that they get it at all.

PROF. W. D. KERR, superintendent of the Missouri Deaf and Dumb Institution, who has just resigned, has filled that position for thirty-seven years.

It turns out that Klein, the American newspaper man, with his German name, who has been figuring in the Boston business, is an Englishman by birth.

THE removal of the capital of Arizona from Prescott to Phoenix having been decided on, it is reasonable to infer that the latter place has risen from its ashes.

NEW YORK set the example of enacting a law to execute death sentences by means of electricity, and Ohio, Illinois and Missouri are about to take similar action.

THE scheme of profit-sharing seems to have passed the experimental stage. A New York company declares that it has benefited them as well as the employees.

EMPRESS FREDERICK of Germany must obtain the permission of her son, the Emperor, before she can accept the $2,000,000 bequeathed her by the Duchess of Galliera.

ST. LOUIS has got hold of a man who has stolen twenty-eight horses in six months, and he is not only eighty-two years of age, but lame, near-sighted and suffering with asthma.

DURING the last eleven years 1,535 female servants in Germany have received a cross and diploma from the Empress Augusta for continuous service in one family for forty years.

THE Woman's Exchange, of New York, sold about $50,000 worth of things last year. Of 4,170 pieces of work done upon order only twenty-four were returned as unsatisfactory.

THERE are propositions in France to construct canals from Bordeaux to the seaboard of the Atlantic and from Narbonne to the Mediterranean; total length, 330 miles; cost, $130,000,000.

A CHURCH in Almont, Mich., raises money in a novel way. A box is placed in the church, and the members on their birthdays drop as many cents into the box as they are years old.

THERE are 7,000,000 negroes in the United States. In the South there are 16,000 colored school teachers. They have colleges, universities and seminaries, and are worth $2,000,000 in property.

DROWNED IN WHISKY.

Unusual Cause of Death Made a Foundation for a Pension Claim.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The most extraordinary pension case that has ever been before the Pension Office was decided last week. It was the application of a dependent mother on the death of her son "in the line of duty." The soldier was in a Vermont regiment, and at the front. A supply train had been captured by the company he was in, and among the stores were several barrels of whisky. The heads of the barrels were broken in, and a general rush for the contents was made. "First come first served" was the rule until the whisky began to run low, and an effort was necessary to dip it out. The soldier, for whose mother a pension is claimed, was one of the later comers, and he had to lean over the side of the barrel to reach down with his tin cup for a drink. In a spirit of deviltry some of his comrades lifted his heels and threw him into the barrel head first. He remained in that position to the great delight of the fun makers. When every one had enjoyed the supposed joke the victim was drawn out of the barrel by his legs, and then it was discovered he was dead. He had been drowned. The fumes and shock of the whisky had strangled him. The mother's loss was the same as if her boy had been killed in battle, and as he was in the service when he died, the claims of death "in the line of duty" were set up with the hope that the Pension Office might allow it to pass, considering her necessities and the loyalty of her boy, who had volunteered in pure patriotism and for love of his country. The Pension Office, however, do not make any laws, and whoever they sympathize with the poor mother might be, or the kindly feeling excited by the ghastly humor of the claim, they had to consider that their decision would be reviewed by a Board of Government pension lawyers. The claim was therefore rejected.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The most extraordinary pension case that has ever been before the Pension Office was decided last week. It was the application of a dependent mother on the death of her son "in the line of duty." The soldier was in a Vermont regiment, and at the front. A supply train had been captured by the company he was in, and among the stores were several barrels of whisky. The heads of the barrels were broken in, and a general rush for the contents was made. "First come first served" was the rule until the whisky began to run low, and an effort was necessary to dip it out. The soldier, for whose mother a pension is claimed, was one of the later comers, and he had to lean over the side of the barrel to reach down with his tin cup for a drink. In a spirit of deviltry some of his comrades lifted his heels and threw him into the barrel head first. He remained in that position to the great delight of the fun makers. When every one had enjoyed the supposed joke the victim was drawn out of the barrel by his legs, and then it was discovered he was dead. He had been drowned. The fumes and shock of the whisky had strangled him. The mother's loss was the same as if her boy had been killed in battle, and as he was in the service when he died, the claims of death "in the line of duty" were set up with the hope that the Pension Office might allow it to pass, considering her necessities and the loyalty of her boy, who had volunteered in pure patriotism and for love of his country. The Pension Office, however, do not make any laws, and whoever they sympathize with the poor mother might be, or the kindly feeling excited by the ghastly humor of the claim, they had to consider that their decision would be reviewed by a Board of Government pension lawyers. The claim was therefore rejected.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The most extraordinary pension case that has ever been before the Pension Office was decided last week. It was the application of a dependent mother on the death of her son "in the line of duty." The soldier was in a Vermont regiment, and at the front. A supply train had been captured by the company he was in, and among the stores were several barrels of whisky. The heads of the barrels were broken in, and a general rush for the contents was made. "First come first served" was the rule until the whisky began to run low, and an effort was necessary to dip it out. The soldier, for whose mother a pension is claimed, was one of the later comers, and he had to lean over the side of the barrel to reach down with his tin cup for a drink. In a spirit of deviltry some of his comrades lifted his heels and threw him into the barrel head first. He remained in that position to the great delight of the fun makers. When every one had enjoyed the supposed joke the victim was drawn out of the barrel by his legs, and then it was discovered he was dead. He had been drowned. The fumes and shock of the whisky had strangled him. The mother's loss was the same as if her boy had been killed in battle, and as he was in the service when he died, the claims of death "in the line of duty" were set up with the hope that the Pension Office might allow it to pass, considering her necessities and the loyalty of her boy, who had volunteered in pure patriotism and for love of his country. The Pension Office, however, do not make any laws, and whoever they sympathize with the poor mother might be, or the kindly feeling excited by the ghastly humor of the claim, they had to consider that their decision would be reviewed by a Board of Government pension lawyers. The claim was therefore rejected.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The most extraordinary pension case that has ever been before the Pension Office was decided last week. It was the application of a dependent mother on the death of her son "in the line of duty." The soldier was in a Vermont regiment, and at the front. A supply train had been captured by the company he was in, and among the stores were several barrels of whisky. The heads of the barrels were broken in, and a general rush for the contents was made. "First come first served" was the rule until the whisky began to run low, and an effort was necessary to dip it out. The soldier, for whose mother a pension is claimed, was one of the later comers, and he had to lean over the side of the barrel to reach down with his tin cup for a drink. In a spirit of deviltry some of his comrades lifted his heels and threw him into the barrel head first. He remained in that position to the great delight of the fun makers. When every one had enjoyed the supposed joke the victim was drawn out of the barrel by his legs, and then it was discovered he was dead. He had been drowned. The fumes and shock of the whisky had strangled him. The mother's loss was the same as if her boy had been killed in battle, and as he was in the service when he died, the claims of death "in the line of duty" were set up with the hope that the Pension Office might allow it to pass, considering her necessities and the loyalty of her boy, who had volunteered in pure patriotism and for love of his country. The Pension Office, however, do not make any laws, and whoever they sympathize with the poor mother might be, or the kindly feeling excited by the ghastly humor of the claim, they had to consider that their decision would be reviewed by a Board of Government pension lawyers. The claim was therefore rejected.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The most extraordinary pension case that has ever been before the Pension Office was decided last week. It was the application of a dependent mother on the death of her son "in the line of duty." The soldier was in a Vermont regiment, and at the front. A supply train had been captured by the company he was in, and among the stores were several barrels of whisky. The heads of the barrels were broken in, and a general rush for the contents was made. "First come first served" was the rule until the whisky began to run low, and an effort was necessary to dip it out. The soldier, for whose mother a pension is claimed, was one of the later comers, and he had to lean over the side of the barrel to reach down with his tin cup for a drink. In a spirit of deviltry some of his comrades lifted his heels and threw him into the barrel head first. He remained in that position to the great delight of the fun makers. When every one had enjoyed the supposed joke the victim was drawn out of the barrel by his legs, and then it was discovered he was dead. He had been drowned. The fumes and shock of the whisky had strangled him. The mother's loss was the same as if her boy had been killed in battle, and as he was in the service when he died, the claims of death "in the line of duty" were set up with the hope that the Pension Office might allow it to pass, considering her necessities and the loyalty of her boy, who had volunteered in pure patriotism and for love of his country. The Pension Office, however, do not make any laws, and whoever they sympathize with the poor mother might be, or the kindly feeling excited by the ghastly humor of the claim, they had to consider that their decision would be reviewed by a Board of Government pension lawyers. The claim was therefore rejected.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The most extraordinary pension case that has ever been before the Pension Office was decided last week. It was the application of a dependent mother on the death of her son "in the line of duty." The soldier was in a Vermont regiment, and at the front. A supply train had been captured by the company he was in, and among the stores were several barrels of whisky. The heads of the barrels were broken in, and a general rush for the contents was made. "First come first served" was the rule until the whisky began to run low, and an effort was necessary to dip it out. The soldier, for whose mother a pension is claimed, was one of the later comers, and he had to lean over the side of the barrel to reach down with his tin cup for a drink. In a spirit of deviltry some of his comrades lifted his heels and threw him into the barrel head first. He remained in that position to the great delight of the fun makers. When every one had enjoyed the supposed joke the victim was drawn out of the barrel by his legs, and then it was discovered he was dead. He had been drowned. The fumes and shock of the whisky had strangled him. The mother's loss was the same as if her boy had been killed in battle, and as he was in the service when he died, the claims of death "in the line of duty" were set up with the hope that the Pension Office might allow it to pass, considering her necessities and the loyalty of her boy, who had volunteered in pure patriotism and for love of his country. The Pension Office, however, do not make any laws, and whoever they sympathize with the poor mother might be, or the kindly feeling excited by the ghastly humor of the claim, they had to consider that their decision would be reviewed by a Board of Government pension lawyers. The claim was therefore rejected.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The most extraordinary pension case that has ever been before the Pension Office was decided last week. It was the application of a dependent mother on the death of her son "in the line of duty." The soldier was in a Vermont regiment, and at the front. A supply train had been captured by the company he was in, and among the stores were several barrels of whisky. The heads of the barrels were broken in, and a general rush for the contents was made. "First come first served" was the rule until the whisky began to run low, and an effort was necessary to dip it out. The soldier, for whose mother a pension is claimed, was one of the later comers, and he had to lean over the side of the barrel to reach down with his tin cup for a drink. In a spirit of deviltry some of his comrades lifted his heels and threw him into the barrel head first. He remained in that position to the great delight of the fun makers. When every one had enjoyed the supposed joke the victim was drawn out of the barrel by his legs, and then it was discovered he was dead. He had been drowned. The fumes and shock of the whisky had strangled him. The mother's loss was the same as if her boy had been killed in battle, and as he was in the service when he died, the claims of death "in the line of duty" were set up with the hope that the Pension Office might allow it to pass, considering her necessities and the loyalty of her boy, who had volunteered in pure patriotism and for love of his country. The Pension Office, however, do not make any laws, and whoever they sympathize with the poor mother might be, or the kindly feeling excited by the ghastly humor of the claim, they had to consider that their decision would be reviewed by a Board of Government pension lawyers. The claim was therefore rejected.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The most extraordinary pension case that has ever been before the Pension Office was decided last week. It was the application of a dependent mother on the death of her son "in the line of duty." The soldier was in a Vermont regiment, and at the front. A supply train had been captured by the company he was in, and among the stores were several barrels of whisky. The heads of the barrels were broken in, and a general rush for the contents was made. "First come first served" was the rule until the whisky began to run low, and an effort was necessary to dip it out. The soldier, for whose mother a pension is claimed, was one of the later comers, and he had to lean over the side of the barrel to reach down with his tin cup for a drink. In a spirit of deviltry some of his comrades lifted his heels and threw him into the barrel head first. He remained in that position to the great delight of the fun makers. When every one had enjoyed the supposed joke the victim was drawn out of the barrel by his legs, and then it was discovered he was dead. He had been drowned. The fumes and shock of the whisky had strangled him. The mother's loss was the same as if her boy had been killed in battle, and as he was in the service when he died, the claims of death "in the line of duty" were set up with the hope that the Pension Office might allow it to pass, considering her necessities and the loyalty of her boy, who had volunteered in pure patriotism and for love of his country. The Pension Office, however, do not make any laws, and whoever they sympathize with the poor mother might be, or the kindly feeling excited by the ghastly humor of the claim, they had to consider that their decision would be reviewed by a Board of Government pension lawyers. The claim was therefore rejected.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The most extraordinary pension case that has ever been before the Pension Office was decided last week. It was the application of a dependent mother on the death of her son "in the line of duty." The soldier was in a Vermont regiment, and at the front. A supply train had been captured by the company he was in, and among the stores were several barrels of whisky. The heads of the barrels were broken in, and a general rush for the contents was made. "First come first served" was the rule until the whisky began to run low, and an effort was necessary to dip it out. The soldier, for whose mother a pension is claimed, was one of the later comers, and he had to lean over the side of the barrel to reach down with his tin cup for a drink. In a spirit of deviltry some of his comrades lifted his heels and threw him into the barrel head first. He remained in that position to the great delight of the fun makers. When every one had enjoyed the supposed joke the victim was drawn out of the barrel by his legs, and then it was discovered he was dead. He had been drowned. The fumes and shock of the whisky had strangled him. The mother's loss was the same as if her boy had been killed in battle, and as he was in the service when he died, the claims of death "in the line of duty" were set up with the hope that the Pension Office might allow it to pass, considering her necessities and the loyalty of her boy, who had volunteered in pure patriotism and for love of his country. The Pension Office, however, do not make any laws, and whoever they sympathize with the poor mother might be, or the kindly feeling excited by the ghastly humor of the claim, they had to consider that their decision would be reviewed by a Board of Government pension lawyers. The claim was therefore rejected.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The most extraordinary pension case that has ever been before the Pension Office was decided last week. It was the application of a dependent mother on the death of her son "in the line of duty." The soldier was in a Vermont regiment, and at the front. A supply train had been captured by the company he was in, and among the stores were several barrels of whisky. The heads of the barrels were broken in, and a general rush for the contents was made. "First come first served" was the rule until the whisky began to run low, and an effort was necessary to dip it out. The soldier, for whose mother a pension is claimed, was one of the later comers, and he had to lean over the side of the barrel to reach down with his tin cup for a drink. In a spirit of deviltry some of his comrades lifted his heels and threw him into the barrel head first. He remained in that position to the great delight of the fun makers. When every one had enjoyed the supposed joke the victim was drawn out of the barrel by his legs, and then it was discovered he was dead. He had been drowned. The fumes and shock of the whisky had strangled him. The mother's loss was the same as if her boy had been killed in battle, and as he was in the service when he died, the claims of death "in the line of duty" were set up with the hope that the Pension Office might allow it to pass, considering her necessities and the loyalty of her boy, who had volunteered in pure patriotism and for love of his country. The Pension Office, however, do not make any laws, and whoever they sympathize with the poor mother might be, or the kindly feeling excited by the ghastly humor of the claim, they had to consider that their decision would be reviewed by a Board of Government pension lawyers. The claim was therefore rejected.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The most extraordinary pension case that has ever been before the Pension Office was decided last week. It was the application of a dependent mother on the death of her son "in the line of duty." The soldier was in a Vermont regiment, and at the front. A supply train had been captured by the company he was in, and among the stores were several barrels of whisky. The heads of the barrels were broken in, and a general rush for the contents was made. "First come first served" was the rule until the whisky began to run low, and an effort was necessary to dip it out. The soldier, for whose mother a pension is claimed, was one of the later comers, and he had to lean over the side of the barrel to reach down with his tin cup for a drink. In a spirit of deviltry some of his comrades lifted his heels and threw him into the barrel head first. He remained in that position to the great delight of the fun makers. When every one had enjoyed the supposed joke the victim was drawn out of the barrel by his legs, and then it was discovered he was dead. He had been drowned. The fumes and shock of the whisky had strangled him. The mother's loss was the same as if her boy had been killed in battle, and as he was in the service when he died, the claims of death "in the line of duty" were set up with the hope that the Pension Office might allow it to pass, considering her necessities and the loyalty of her boy, who had volunteered in pure patriotism and for love of his country. The Pension Office, however, do not make any laws, and whoever they sympathize with the poor mother might be, or the kindly feeling excited by the ghastly humor of the claim, they had to consider that their decision would be reviewed by a Board of Government pension lawyers. The claim was therefore rejected.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The most extraordinary pension case that has ever been before the Pension Office was decided last week. It was the application of a dependent mother on the death of her son "in the line of duty." The soldier was in a Vermont regiment, and at the front. A supply train had been captured by the company he was in, and among the stores were several barrels of whisky. The heads of the barrels were broken in, and a general rush for the contents was made. "First come first served" was the rule until the whisky began to run low, and an effort was necessary to dip it out. The soldier, for whose mother a pension is claimed, was one of the later comers, and he had to lean over the side of the barrel to reach down with his tin cup for a drink. In a spirit of deviltry some of his comrades lifted his heels and threw him into the barrel head first. He remained in that position to the great delight of the fun makers. When every one had enjoyed the supposed joke the victim was drawn out of the barrel by his legs, and then it was discovered he was dead. He had been drowned. The fumes and shock of the whisky had strangled him. The mother's loss was the same as if her boy had been killed in battle, and as he was in the service when he died, the claims of death "in the line of duty" were set up with the hope that the Pension Office might allow it to pass, considering her necessities and the loyalty of her boy, who had volunteered in pure patriotism and for love of his country. The Pension Office, however, do not make any laws, and whoever they sympathize with the poor mother might be, or the kindly feeling excited by the ghastly humor of the claim, they had to consider that their decision would be reviewed by a Board of Government pension lawyers. The claim was therefore rejected.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The most extraordinary pension case that has ever been before the Pension Office was decided last week. It was the application of a dependent mother on the death of her son "in the line of duty." The soldier was in a Vermont regiment, and at the front. A supply train had been captured by the company he was in, and among the stores were several barrels of whisky. The heads of the barrels were broken in, and a general rush for the contents was made. "First come first served" was the rule until the whisky began to run low, and an effort was necessary to dip it out. The soldier, for whose mother a pension is claimed, was one of the later comers, and he had to lean over the side of the barrel to reach down with his tin cup for a drink. In a spirit of deviltry some of his comrades lifted his heels and threw him into the barrel head first. He remained in that position to the great delight of the fun makers. When every one had enjoyed the supposed joke the victim was drawn out of the barrel by his legs, and then it was discovered he was dead. He had been drowned. The fumes and shock of the whisky had strangled him. The mother's loss was the same as if her boy had been killed in battle, and as he was in the service when he died, the claims of death "in the line of duty" were set up with the hope that the Pension Office might allow it to pass, considering her necessities and the loyalty of her boy, who had volunteered in pure patriotism and for love of his country. The Pension Office, however, do not make any laws, and whoever they sympathize with the poor mother might be, or the kindly feeling excited by the ghastly humor of the claim, they had to consider that their decision would be reviewed by a Board of Government pension lawyers. The claim was therefore rejected.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The most extraordinary pension case that has ever been before the Pension Office was decided last week. It was the application of a dependent mother on the death of her son "in the line of duty." The soldier was in a Vermont regiment, and at the front. A supply train had been captured by the company he was in, and among the stores were several barrels of whisky. The heads of the barrels were broken in, and a general rush for the contents was made. "First come first served" was the rule until the whisky began to run low, and an effort was necessary to dip it out. The soldier, for whose mother a pension is claimed, was one of the later comers, and he had to lean over the side of the barrel to reach down with his tin cup for a drink. In a spirit of deviltry some of his comrades lifted his heels and threw him into the barrel head first. He remained in that position to the great delight of the fun makers. When every one had enjoyed the supposed joke the victim was drawn out of the barrel by his legs, and then it was discovered he was dead. He had been drowned. The fumes and shock of the whisky had strangled him. The mother's loss was the same as if her boy had been killed in battle, and as he was in the service when he died, the claims of death "in the line of duty" were set up with the hope that the Pension Office might allow it to pass, considering her necessities and the loyalty of her boy, who had volunteered in pure patriotism and for love of his country. The Pension Office, however, do not make any laws, and whoever they sympathize with the poor mother might be, or the kindly feeling excited by the ghastly humor of the claim, they had to consider that their decision would be reviewed by a Board of Government pension lawyers. The claim was therefore rejected.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The most extraordinary pension case that has ever been before the Pension Office was decided last week. It was the application of a dependent mother on the death of her son "in the line of duty." The soldier was in a Vermont regiment, and at the front. A supply train had been captured by the company he was in, and among the stores were several barrels of whisky. The heads of the barrels were broken in, and a general rush for the contents was made. "First come first served" was the rule until the whisky began to run low, and an effort was necessary to dip it out. The soldier, for whose mother a pension is claimed, was one of the later comers, and he had to lean over the side of the barrel to reach down with his tin cup for a drink. In a spirit of deviltry some of his comrades lifted his heels and threw him into the barrel head first. He remained in that position to the great delight of the fun makers. When every one had enjoyed the supposed joke the victim was drawn out of the barrel by his legs, and then it was discovered he was dead. He had been drowned. The fumes and shock of the whisky had strangled him. The mother's loss was the same as if her boy had been killed in battle, and as he was in the service when he died, the claims of death "in the line of duty" were set up with the hope that the Pension Office might allow it to pass, considering her necessities and the loyalty of her boy, who had volunteered in pure patriotism and for love of his country. The Pension Office, however, do not make any laws, and whoever they sympathize with the poor mother might be, or the kindly feeling excited by the ghastly humor of the claim, they had to consider that their decision would be reviewed by a Board of Government pension lawyers. The claim was therefore rejected.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The most extraordinary pension case that has ever been before the Pension Office was decided last week. It was the application of a dependent mother on the death of her son "in the line of duty." The soldier was in a Vermont regiment, and at the front. A supply train had been captured by the company he was in, and among the stores were several barrels of whisky. The heads of the barrels were broken in, and a general rush for the contents was made. "First come first served" was the rule until the whisky began to run low, and an effort was necessary to dip it out. The soldier, for whose mother a pension is claimed, was one of the later comers, and he had to lean over the side of the barrel to reach down with his tin cup for a drink. In a spirit of deviltry some of his comrades lifted his heels and threw him into the barrel head first. He remained in that position to the great delight of the fun makers. When every one had enjoyed the supposed joke the victim was drawn out of the barrel by his legs, and then it was discovered he was dead. He had been drowned. The fumes and shock of the whisky had strangled him. The mother's loss was the same as if her boy had been killed in battle, and as he was in the service when he died, the claims of death "in the line of duty" were set up with the hope that the Pension Office might allow it to pass, considering her necessities and the loyalty of her boy, who had volunteered in pure patriotism and for love of his country. The Pension Office, however, do not make any laws, and whoever they sympathize with the poor mother might be, or the kindly feeling excited by the ghastly humor of the claim, they had to consider that their decision would be reviewed by a Board of Government pension lawyers. The claim was therefore rejected.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The most extraordinary pension case that has ever been before the Pension Office was decided last week. It was the application of a dependent mother on the death of her son "in the line of duty." The soldier was in a Vermont regiment, and at the front. A supply train had been captured by the company he was in, and among the stores were several barrels of whisky. The heads of the barrels were broken in, and a general rush for the contents was made. "First come first served" was the rule until the whisky began to run low, and an effort was necessary to dip it out. The soldier, for whose mother a pension is claimed, was one of the later comers, and he had to lean over the side of the barrel to reach down with his tin cup for a drink. In a spirit of deviltry some of his comrades lifted his heels and threw him into the barrel head first. He remained in that position to the great delight of the fun makers. When every one had enjoyed the supposed joke the victim was drawn out of the barrel by his legs, and then it was discovered he was dead. He had been drowned. The fumes and shock of the whisky had strangled him. The mother's loss was the same as if her boy had been killed in battle, and as he was in the service when he died, the claims of death "in the line of duty" were set up with the hope that the Pension Office might allow it to pass, considering her necessities and the loyalty of her boy, who had volunteered in pure patriotism and for love of his country. The Pension Office, however, do not make any laws, and whoever they sympathize with the poor mother might be, or the kindly feeling excited by the ghastly humor of the claim, they had to consider that their decision would be reviewed by a Board of Government pension lawyers. The claim was therefore rejected.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The most extraordinary pension case that has ever been before the Pension Office was decided last week. It was the application of a dependent mother on the death of her son "in the line of duty." The soldier was in a Vermont regiment, and at the front. A supply train had been captured by the company he was in, and among the stores were several barrels of whisky. The heads of the barrels were broken in, and a general rush for the contents was made. "First come first served" was the rule until the whisky began to run low, and an effort was necessary to dip it out. The soldier, for whose mother a pension is claimed, was one of the later comers, and he had to lean over the side of the barrel to reach down with his tin cup for a drink. In a spirit of deviltry some of his comrades lifted his heels and threw him into the barrel head first. He remained in that position to the great delight of the fun makers. When every one had enjoyed the supposed joke the victim was drawn out of the barrel by his legs, and then it was discovered he was dead. He had been drowned. The fumes and shock of the whisky had strangled him. The mother's loss was the same as if her boy had been killed in battle, and as he was in the service when he died, the claims of death "in the line of duty" were set

BIG SANDY NEWS.
Published at the post office at Louisville, Ky., as second-class matter.
Published every Thursday by—
M. F. CONLEY,
EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.
Terms—$1.00 per year in advance.
OFFICE—Old Clerk's Office Building,
11 U.S.A. KENTUCKY.
Advertiser rates furnished upon application.
THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 31st, 1889.

Charles Dilger, the murderer of the Louisville police officers, Jones and Rosenberg, has been sentenced to die on the gallows, March 15.

Indictments have been served upon half a dozen more violators of Indiana's election laws. Many more arrests are promised for this week.

The Commissioner of Pensions estimates that there will be a deficiency of $8,000,000 in the appropriation for pensions for the present fiscal year.

A bill to remove the capital from Prescott to Phoenix has passed the Arizona House by a vote of fourteen to ten. The approval of the Council and Governor is necessary for it to become a law.

C. M. Norwood, late Union Labor and Republican candidate for Governor of Arkansas has withdrawn his contest to Gov. Eagle's election. The Legislature wanted him to give bond for all costs, and this settled him and his case.

Democrats gained a decisive victory in the West Virginia Joint Assembly, forcing the Filibusterers to allow the count for Governor to proceed. The vote was opened, but the count was not finished when a recess was taken. No result was reached in the Senatorial contest. It is believed that Senator Kenna will receive the Union Labor Delegates' votes when they think the proper time has come to elect him.—Courier-Journal.

The tobacco growers of Kentucky and a number from Ohio formed a permanent organization at Lexington Monday; resolved to reduce the crop of 1889 50 per cent. below the acreage of 1888; indorsed the Louisville Leaf Tobacco Exchange in its action against the buyers and manufacturers; provided for a memorial to Congress to remove the tobacco tax; and adjourned to meet again in Lexington, February 26, to hear reports from farmers concerning the crop-reduction regulation.—Courier-Journal.

Pandemonium reigned in the General Assembly of West Virginia Friday, the occasion being the counting of the gubernatorial vote. Republicans began filibustering to delay proceedings, and the joint convention soon became a howling mob. Senator Morris assailed Speaker Woods in violent language, which was repeated by President Carr, of the Senate, who marched down on Morris to wipe out the insult with blood. An encounter was prevented by force, and the Assembly broke up in great disorder.

A resolution has been introduced in the West Virginia Legislature, instructing Gov. Wilson to proffer the services of the State militia to aid in settling the Samoan trouble. West Virginia's militia might bring at home and settle the troubles in the Legislature after which it might tackle the Hatfields, before marching on Germany.—Courier-Journal.

Here we have another instance of the momentous consequences that follow from seemingly trifling pauses. All this Samoan trouble comes from the breaking of the nose of a German by a Samoan. The German wanted $1,000 for this impairing of his beauty, and the commander of a German warship ordered the King to pay it. Now, if the King had been saving up his salary, as he should have done, he could have paid this money, the wounded honor of Germany would have been healed, and everything would have been serene. But the King was short of funds, having probably fooled his money away for beer, or possibly lost it in stock gambling. Thereupon he was deposed and sent out of the country, and a general row resulted, and the relations between two great governments are painfully strained in consequence.—Courier-Journal.

Croup, whooping cough, sore throat, sudden cold, and the lung troubles peculiar to children, are easily controlled by promptly administering Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. This remedy is safe to take and certain in its action.

A Pointed Interview.
[St. Louis Globe Democrat.]
The talk about Mr. Allison's decision as to accepting the Secretaryship of the Treasury is all bosh. More than a month ago a Western lady of culture and prominence met Mr. Allison at a society gathering in Washington. "Have you been called to Indianapolis?" said the lady. "I have not, madam," said the Senator. "Do you think you will be offered the Treasury portfolio?" said the lady. "I do not, madam," said the Senator. "Would you accept it if it were tendered," said the lady. "I would, madam," said the Senator. This is official.

A Sectional Affair.
[Macon News.]
This is the Washington talk now: The subscriptions to defray the expenses of the inaugural ceremonies amount to over $500,000 the largest sum ever raised for such a purpose. The total of military certain to be in the parade toots up 21,187, and the other organizations number 20,661 members. None of the military comes from the South. There will be a marked difference in this respect from four years ago, when Gen. Lee was honored with the "Rebel yell."

They Get to the Bottom.
[N. Y. Times.]
Nearly all the appointments to civil offices made by the President during the present session of Congress, to the number of more than three hundred, have been "hung up" in the Senate, with the evident purpose of having the present incumbents of the offices holding over, so that a Republican President can fill their places after the 4th of March. That is in striking contrast with the action of the Senate four years ago, when every appointment of President Arthur was promptly confirmed in order that the opportunities of the incoming President for filling places under his administration should be restricted as much as possible. Yet Republican Senators say they are not conspiring to leave vacancies in the service for Gen. Harrison to fill. If there is any kind of narrow partisanship below their level it has failed to come in sight. They get tight down to the bottom every time.

"It is worth its weight in gold," is a common expression. But, while the value of gold is easily affected, the worth of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, as a blood purifier, never depreciates. It will eradicate scrofula from the system when everything else fails.

Stand by Kentucky.
Kentucky has been slow in some particulars, but she is quickening her pace. Her people are becoming fairly awake, and are bending their energies to develop the many varied resources of the State. Railroads are spreading their iron arms into the mountains where coal and lumber abound, and the waste places will be made to yield rich returns. Central Kentucky is not behind in the march of development and progress. Commercial Clubs are being organized, and there is unusual activity in the Blue Grass section. There is no longer need for any Kentuckian, who wants to work to go to Kansas or other new State. There is no longer a need for young men of pluck and energy, who want to better their fortunes to leave Kentucky. There is work to do at home, and fortune, too, for the worker, if proper diligence, enterprise and energy is used. The grand old Commonwealth is entering upon a new era.

The death is reported in Turkey of a Mohammedan named Hadzi Sulejman Jaba, who had reached the very respectable age of 132. He had seven wives, sixty sons and nine daughters, and had survived them all. At the time he married his last wife he was 98, and when she joined the majority he was still so far under the influence of love's young dream that he wanted to marry again, but the state of his finances did not permit of any further participation in matrimonial joys. With the exception of meat at the Barium feast he lived exclusively on barley bread and beans, drinking only water, but on this spare diet he managed to preserve his health so well that until four days before he ended his long career he did not know what it was to be ill.

MERIT WINS.
We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Life Pills, Back's Arterio Sive and Electric Bitters, and have never had a remedy that sells so well, or that has given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them in every case, and we stand ready to refund a purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity on their merits. W. T. Evans, Druggist.

The Samoan Business.
[N. Y. World.]
The true inwardness of the Samoan business may be briefly stated: The foreign trade of the island is in the hands of three great foreign Plantation Companies, which are gradually acquiring by illegal means the whole of the land. One of these companies is American, another is English, while the third and most important is a German corporation in which Count Herbert Bismarck, Herr Von Puttkamer and a number of other high but badly paid officials at Berlin are financially interested. For the past ten years internal troubles and civil wars have been fermented and fostered for the purpose of inducing the warlike natives to sell their lands for the sake of rifles and ammunition.

Thus the American Company has just forced the loyalist Mataafa men to sell and mortgage their lands for the purpose of buying Snider cartridges at 11 cents apiece, 20 cents having been at first demanded, while the German Plantation Company has sold obsolete muskets confiscated from the Marshall Islanders at the rate of $7.50 apiece to the Tamasese rebels. By these practices the German Company has acquired over two hundred thousand acres of land in Samoa. The treaty obligations prohibit the sale of arms and liquor to the natives, and it is certain that if the stipulations were strictly enforced there would be no Samoan question. At the present moment the international relations between the United States and Germany and England are strained to the utmost for the mere purpose of putting a few dollars into the pockets of unscrupulous men at Berlin, in London and in this country at the expense of the unfortunate Samoans.

Substantial Boomers.
The organization of Commercial Clubs throughout the State is proceeding very rapidly with the probability that before spring every enterprise in Kentucky will have its representative body of business men to take an interest in the development of new enterprises. These organizations are preliminary to forming a strong State League, and it is highly probable that the first important business taken up by the consolidated body will be the perfecting of a plan for inducing immigration to the State.

Sweet Cider All the Year.
[Clinton Democrat.]
Mr. Elzey, living near Bardwell, in Carlisle, Kentucky, has a splendid apple orchard and an experiment a few years ago had a cistern dug eighteen feet deep and nine feet in diameter, cemented thoroughly, making a cistern which holds several hundred gallons. He then arranged a trough from his cider mill to the cistern, continuing the manufacture of cider until the cistern was full. This kept nice sweet cider all the year. When he wanted cider he would work the pump. If an order for a barrel, he soon pumped it. He keeps sweet cider all the year and his cistern never goes dry.

The Popular Chance.
[Evansville Courier.]
The most gallant thought in all this business is that the wrongs to be perpetrated by the Fifty-first Congress and the Republican President will be on the authority of a minority of The People.

Solitary and Alone.
[Wheeling Intelligence.]
There is but one Democratic member in the Kansas State Senate, and it is said that when he holds a caucus the session is so harmonious that you can hear a pin drop.

A SAFE INVESTMENT.
Is one which is guaranteed to bring you satisfactory results, or in case of failure a return of purchase price. On this safe plan you can buy from our advertised Druggist a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. It is guaranteed to bring relief in every case, when used for any affection of Throat, Lungs, or chest, such as consumption, inflammation of lungs, bronchitis, asthma, whooping cough, croup, etc. It is pleasant and agreeable to the taste, perfectly safe, and can always be depended upon. Trial bottles free at W. T. Evans' Drug Store.

Frankfort Roundabout. Mrs. Mary Hinton, a beautiful and fashionable lady from Paris, was brought to the Penitentiary on Monday, for the murder of her brother-in-law, Mr. Rick Thomas, brother of Hon. Claude M. Thomas. She was put to making brooms.

Accommodating Garments.
Small Clerk—"Fader, a shentleman in de store wants to know if you got a good, non-shrinkable shirt?"
Proprietor—"Does it fit him?"
"No, it is too big."
"Yuh, id will shrink."

High-toned Millionaires.
[Nashville American.]
The United States Senate is becoming simply a club of high-toned millionaires. It is an institution which is proud of its somnolent dignity and its impressive nothingness. It never wakes until the interests of the railroads, the corporate monopolists or some other enemy of the people are concerned, and then it can be remarkably wide awake. It is mean-spirited, subservient and ever ready servant of every corrupt and corrupting power, and when it has served its master it goes to sleep.

About an Even thing.
[Washington Post.]
The country gentleman who comes to town once in three years and unexpectedly gets bounced, is not so very far behind his city brother after all. He buys agricultural machinery of bogus agents and gives due bills, which appear later as promissory notes in the hands of innocent holders. He invests in Hungarian oats and Tuluia beets. His city brother goes into blind pools and gets left, invests in electric sugar swindles and gets stuck, but not with sugar, and goes in for wonderful motors, which will not go. Now a party turns up who sell confiding city people local rights in a good egg preserving and bad-egg revamping process, with millions in it. It is an old swindle, which took in some years ago no less a person than Robert Pinkerton, the great Chicago detective. Smile, O Granger, smile for thine innocent greed, for soft snaps and sudden wealth are merely human nature.

State of Ohio, City of Toledo, Lucas County, S. S.
Frank J. Cheney makes oath that he is the senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of Hall's Catarrh Cure.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of Dec., 1888.
A. W. GLEASON,
Notary Public.
Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials.

Around the World in Eight Years.
[Mercer Sayings and Doings.]
Eight years ago June Eliot was a journeyman printer on the Interior Journal at Stanford. One morning, coming up after a "lark", he was too enthused to prosper. After spending half an hour in setting one line, in attempting to justify it he "pied" it. Being a young man of large ideas and little experience, after the line toppled over he immediately expressed a determination to circumnavigate the globe, promising to turn up in Stanford in eight years a wiser if not a better man. He started with a pint but not a cent in his pocket, and was first heard from in Liverpool, next in Rome, and then came a letter from the base of one of the pyramids. He sent from Calcutta an English journal on which he was working, and afterwards went to Japan. He next turned up in Sidney in Australia, and a year afterwards turned up in San Francisco. Thence he has wended his way eastward and this week paid us a visit. He left here Tuesday for Stanford, by pike, and by this time, no doubt, is again slinging type in the Journal office.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kind, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO. 106 Wall St. N. Y.

Sellers' Liver Pills.
Act Directly on the Liver.
Cures Chills and Fever, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Bilious Colic, Constipation, Migraine, Piles, Flatulency of the Stomach, Indigestion, Torpid Liver, Coated Tongue, Sleeplessness, and All Diseases of the Liver and Stomach. If you do not "feel very well," a single pill at bedtime stimulates the stomach, restores the appetite, imparts vigor to the system. They cure all diseases like mace. Get the Sellers' Liver Pills, sold by druggists. Send for circular. SELLERS MEDICINE CO., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Kentucky Farmer: "Been out in Kansas, eh?" Returned emigrant: "Yes; was there ten years." "Farming?" "Yes." "What did you raise?" "Most everything, except mortgages."

From Dr. W. P. Harrison.
Nashville, Tenn., May 2, 1888.—I have used S.S.S. in my family for one year and believe it to be a great remedy for skin diseases. In my own case, I believe it cured a case of a severe attack of humors, which had been treated by all the best medical men in this city, and which had caused a constitutional weakness. It is a great remedy for a constitutional weakness, and it is a great remedy for a constitutional weakness. It is a great remedy for a constitutional weakness, and it is a great remedy for a constitutional weakness.

The Courier-Journal.
The Representative Newspaper of the South-west. Largest Circulation of any Democratic Newspaper in America.

It is the paper for the farmer, the Merchant and the Family Circle. Popular and cheap. It advocates a reform of the present high tariff, and wages vigorous war on all subsidies and monopolies. It is emphatically the people's paper, and its immense circulation throughout the United States attests power as the organ of the people. THE WEEKLY COURIER-JOURNAL is the largest and best Democratic newspaper issued. It is an eight-page paper of eight columns to the page, and its sixty-four columns each week are filled with live and interesting matter. It is new, bright and clean, and leads the American newspapers of the day. The regular subscription price is only $1 a year, and to clubs of eight yearly subscribers at one time, with eight dollars, an extra copy is sent one year to the address of the club-raiser, or to any other address desired. In other words nine copies one year for eight dollars. The Courier-Journal is the one great newspaper, west of the Alleghenies, and south of the Potomac and the Ohio, which has had the courage to stand and resist the flood-tide of monopoly sweeping over the land and to make an upright and disinterested defense of the toiling, tax-paying masses of the people. Fighting all dishonest schemes, the Courier-Journal is as a sentinel on the watch tower, sleepless and vigilant. Subscribe to the Weekly Courier-Journal and learn the truth, and join in the People's Battle of Resistance. Daily (except Sunday), one year, $10; Daily (except Sunday), one month, $1; Sunday, one year, $2. Sample copy and premium supplement sent free of charge to any address. A variety of attractive and useful premiums is offered with the Weekly Courier-Journal. Agents canvassing outfit also free of charge. No traveling agents are employed by the Courier-Journal, but a good local agent is wanted in every community, to whom a liberal cash commission is allowed. Address W. N. HALDEMAN, President Courier-Journal Co., Louisville, Ky.

CHATTANOOGI RAILWAY
To take effect Monday, Nov. 2nd, 1888. (Daily, except Sunday.)

SOUTHWARD		NORTHWARD
Read Down	Read Up	Read Down	Read Up
6:44 No. 1	No. 4	6:44 No. 1	No. 4
Pass.	Pass.	Pass.	Pass.
1:10 6:00 Lv. Ashland Ar.	9:31 4:30	1:10 6:00 Lv. Ashland Ar.	9:31 4:30
1:25 7:00 C. & O. Crossg.	9:12 4:12	1:25 7:00 C. & O. Crossg.	9:12 4:12
1:35 7:05 Normal	9:09 4:09	1:35 7:05 Normal	9:09 4:09
1:45 7:15 Clarksville	9:55 3:55	1:45 7:15 Clarksville	9:55 3:55
1:45 7:20 Hampton	8:50 3:50	1:45 7:20 Hampton	8:50 3:50
1:51 7:27 Oakland	8:42 3:42	1:51 7:27 Oakland	8:42 3:42
2:04 7:50 Savage Branch	8:27 3:30	2:04 7:50 Savage Branch	8:27 3:30
2:21 8:07 Lockwood	8:03 3:17	2:21 8:07 Lockwood	8:03 3:17
2:33 8:15 Burgess	8:50 3:00	2:33 8:15 Burgess	8:50 3:00
2:43 8:21 Wright	7:47 2:59	2:43 8:21 Wright	7:47 2:59
2:52 8:29 Rockville	7:40 2:52	2:52 8:29 Rockville	7:40 2:52
3:10 8:45 Cornutt	7:20 2:31	3:10 8:45 Cornutt	7:20 2:31
3:20 8:51 Catpals	7:10 2:19	3:20 8:51 Catpals	7:10 2:19
3:26 9:00 Fullers	7:06 2:11	3:26 9:00 Fullers	7:06 2:11
3:31 9:05 Bramham	6:58 2:06	3:31 9:05 Bramham	6:58 2:06
3:36 9:10 Widdie	6:54 2:01	3:36 9:10 Widdie	6:54 2:01
3:52 9:27 Louisville	6:38 1:44	3:52 9:27 Louisville	6:38 1:44
3:59 9:32 Camp Ground	6:28 1:35	3:59 9:32 Camp Ground	6:28 1:35
4:12 9:45 Wadbridge	6:14 1:13	4:12 9:45 Wadbridge	6:14 1:13
4:22 9:55 Summit	6:04 1:03	4:22 9:55 Summit	6:04 1:03
4:31 10:04 Pecks	5:54 1:04	4:31 10:04 Pecks	5:54 1:04
4:39 10:08 Northport	5:48 1:00	4:39 10:08 Northport	5:48 1:00
4:50 10:23 Tunnel	5:30 1:12	4:50 10:23 Tunnel	5:30 1:12
4:55 10:34 Peach Orchard	5:15 1:27	4:55 10:34 Peach Orchard	5:15 1:27
5:35 10:48 Forbes	5:05 1:17	5:35 10:48 Forbes	5:05 1:17
5:40 10:57 Richardson	5:00 1:10	5:40 10:57 Richardson	5:00 1:10

JAY H. NORTHRUP, Receiver.
CINCINNATI, PORTSMOUTH, B'G SANTI & PIEROU
Packer Company's Steamers.

JOHN KYLE, Proprietor.
C. M. HOLLOWAY, Superintendent.
Cincinnati, Portsmouth and all Way land up.
LOSTONA—Up Saturdays and Tundays.
Do on Tuesdays and Fridays.
TELEGRAPH—Up Tuesdays and Fridays.
Down Wednesdays and Saturdays.
B'G SANDY—Up Wednesdays and Saturdays.
Down Mondays and Fridays.

ONE BOAT.
LEAVES Cincinnati Daily except Sunday.
AT 10 O'CLOCK, P. M.

THIS PAPER may be found on every street corner, and is sold by all news-vendors. It is published by the NEW YORK PAPER CO., 100 N. 3rd St., N. Y.

SNYDER BROS.,
Hardware, Tinware, Stoves, Wagons,
All kinds of Farming Implements,
Doors, Sash, Blinds, Buggies.
Agents for Victor Cane Mills, Cook's Evaporators, Buckeye Mowers, Sewing Machines, &c.
No. 2 ENTERPRISE BLOCK, LOUISA, KY.

Mammoth Jewelry Store
FRONT STREET,
CATLETTSBURG, KY.
J. R. Ford & Son.
Watches, Clocks, Rings, and in fact everything usually kept in a FIRST-CLASS JEWELRY STORE.
Also keeps a full stock of Buggies, Accordions, Violins and French Harps.

BRYANT & STRATTON BUSINESS COLLEGE
LOUISVILLE, KY.
Book Keeping, Short Hand, Telegraphy, &c.
Write for Catalogue and full information.

SANITARY CLOTHING.
HEALTH WAISTS, UNION UNDERGARMENTS, SKIRT SUSPENDERS, STOCKING SUPPORTERS.
All sorts of Healthful Garments, at reasonable prices.
Family Electric Batteries, Syringes, Water Bags, and Invalids' Supplies of every description.
SEND FOR CIRCULAR.
SANITARY SUPPLY CO.,
BATTLE CREEK, MICH.
HEALTH FOODS
For the choice of invalids. Genuine in quality, and reasonable in price.
SEND FOR DESCRIPTIVE CIRCULAR.
SANITARY FOOD FOR INFANTS.
Prevents and cures Cholera Infantum. The cheapest and the best in the market.
SANITARIUM FOOD CO.,
BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

GRANITE IRONWARE.
FOR BROILING, BAKING, BOILING, STEAMING.
IS LIGHT, HANDSOME, WHOLESALE, DURABLE.
The Best Ware Made for the Kitchen.
Manufactured only by the
St. Louis Stamping Co., St. Louis
For sale by all Stove, Hardware and House Furnishing Dealers.
Cook Book and Recipe List Free on Application. Be Sure to Mention this Paper.

THE SMALLEY ENSILAGE & FODDER CUTTER
For HAND and POWER use, is warranted to cut and chop any kind of hay, straw, or other material, and give better nutrition than any other machine in every particular. To substantiate the above guarantee, we warrant to pay reasonable compensation to any farmer who will send us a written statement, signed by him, that if our machine does not do more and better work with the same power, and in the same time, than any other machine of the same size, we will refund to him the purchase price of the machine. The SMALLEY CUTTER, THE SMALLEY SWEET and FEEDER, and the SMALLEY SWEET and FEEDER, are the only machines of the kind made in America. Send for Circular. Price, $10.00. Address, SMALLEY MANUFACTURING CO., Manitowish, Wis.

MORE THAN NINE TENTHS of the Spices and Condiments used are adulterated. To introduce Pure Spices, we are sending all over the country (charges paid) our "PURE SPICES" in full weight, and of the highest quality. Each of ground black pepper, cloves, ginger, nutmeg, and cinnamon. Sent by mail (free of charge) to the U. S. or Canada, on application of the MARKS, BROS. & CO., 100 N. 3rd St., N. Y.

PARSONS' PILLS
These pills were a wonderful discovery. No other like them in the world. Will positively cure or relieve all manner of disease. The information around each box is worth ten times the cost of a box of pills. Find out about them, and you will always be thankful. One pill a dose. Persons who contain these pills contain nothing harmful, and are safe to take, and cause no inconvenience. The marvelous power of these pills, they would not only get a box if they could not be had without. Sent by mail for ten cents in advance, and a sample of the pills, postage paid. Send for it. Information is very valuable. L. B. JONES, 100 N. 3rd St., N. Y.

Make New Rich Blood!
MCKEY'S
ORAL GUIDE
PLANTS & HERBS. For this is better than ever, and should be in the hands of every person contemplating buying. It contains a Colored Plate, thousands of illustrations, and a GUIDE to the plants, including a Certificate good for the worth of the book. Price 25 cents. Sent by mail. Address, MCKEY, ROCHESTER, N. Y.

